The talk will be a participant's perspective on the activities that took place in the 60's and beyond, to do with the involvement of Kodak in the National Reconnaissance Program (NRP). I have used only recently declassified material, combined with my own recollections to flesh things out a bit, from a human perspective. I will talk to the origins of the NRP, as well as the Corona, Discoverer, E-1, E-2, E-3, Lunar Orbiter, and Gambit programs. I hope to convey a real appreciation for the teams that accomplished these programs, as well as the nature of their contributions to our national security during the Cold War. I will provide as much descriptive material on the key systems as I can, given the time constraints. I hope that the audience will find the talk interesting and informative.
